This is the second monthly webinar that trainer and consultant Mike Anderson of Collision Advice is hosting throughout 2018 to help you easily research and find collision repair procedures.

This month's "Learn to Research, Research to Learn" will focus on Fiat Chrysler's Tech Authority

In these webinars, Mike will focus on a different automaker each month, walking you through the process of using that OEM's website to locate the collision repair procedures, information and position statements you need! You also can text in questions during the live webinar.

Once you understand the automakers' websites and begin using them, it becomes a much faster and easier process, and these webinars will help you do that!

Don't miss this free webinar! Click Here to register!

Attendees will need to use their computer audio; no phone dial-in will be available.

You will have the option to view the webinar at a later date, but registering for the live webinar will ensure you are notified when archived webinars are posted.
